After a few years at the University studying English, Literature and Art, I started my Design studies in Paris in 2004, joining the Product Design section at Créapole – School of creation and management (Paris). After a Master in Design and several experiences in agencies in Paris as an intern, I joined the Adidas kids Team as a footwear Designer in 2008.

Since then, I had different really enriching human and professional experiences in other categories within the company such as sandals, training, running, track & field that definitely helped me build myself as a designer.

As Art and Design have always been a passion, I continue, apart from my permanent position at Adidas, to work on different freelance projects, but also producing artworks, prints and graffiti for exhibitions. I keep on exploring the different horizons of creation such as vehicles, character design, matte painting, Mech design, Graphic design, 3D creations, furniture design, architecture and more...
